THEN

This yearbook marks a change in the production of Mansfield High School yearbooks. For the first time since 1976, Mrs. Gisele Zangari has not been the yearbook advisor. Without her leadership, ideas, scrutiny, rides home from school and love, many yearbooks never would have been published. On behalf of all of the yearbook staffs for the past eleven years, especially the 1986-1987 staff, we would like to say ''Thanks, Mrz. Z!''

WHY?

Each day, we express ourselves in numerous ways. We shout at our friends, we stick our tongues out, we paint, draw, act and sing, and we use certain words and phrases over and over again. This yearbook captures words and faces that will serve as everlasting reminders of our high school experience. In it, we bring to you examples of verbal, physical, facial and artistic expressions that will forever remind us of Mansfield High School. We proudly present to you Mansfield High School's 1987-1988 yearbook, EXPRESSIONS.

NOW

Dear Ms. Williams,

We would like to say "thank you" for your help and dedication as 1987-88 yearbook advisor. We truly value your creative ideas, your trips to buy camera batteries, your phone calls to the photographer, and all of the free periods you spent judging and refining our plans for the yearbook. We hope that you are as pleased with our results as we are.

Creatively yours,
Us

Class of '88

We move ahead for time has passed us by and what we were has now been changed by the love, the struggle and fulfillment that is sometimes found along the journey of life

There can never be tomorrow unless there was yesterday and if yesterday was full of hope and kind memories, then tomorrow will always look brighter.

There is no secret that one can share with other generations that will guarantee them everything they are searching for. It is a matter of personal choice and decision that we all must make throughout our lives.

What we become or fail to become; what we discover about ourselves and our universe; let us hope it all ties in with our brief, but meaningful, time together...
and hope it made a difference.

Your teacher and friend,

Sergio Morales
Advisor to the graduating class of 1988

The senior class officers thank everyone in the Class of 1988 for making these four years unforgettable. As a class, we have had many memorable moments. Being such a close class, we will surely miss our happy times and think often of each other with fond memories. We hope that the future holds nothing but the best of luck for everyone.

STUDENT'S
REATENED

ip of school newspapers now legal

By Ann Tweedy

The Supreme Court decided on Wednesday, January 13, that Principals had the right to censor school newspapers. Students in Hazelwood, Missouri had brought a case before the Supreme Court hoping to have their First Amendment rights to freedom of speech and freedom of the press upheld. Their Principal, Robert Reynolds had removed two pages from THE SPECTRUM, Hazelwood High's newspaper in 1983 without consulting the newspaper's editorial staff. Reynolds called the censored articles, which concerned teen pregnancy and the effects of divorce, "inappropriate, insensitive, ...and unsuitable.

Mr. Rosa, on the contrary, believes the Supreme Court decision "went too far". His view is that the Principal, the newspaper pal Edward Rosa doesn't seem overly concerned by the sed budget cuts. "If we had to make major cuts, some difdecisions would have to be made but I think that regardless of what happens the professional staff here at MHS is capable of preserving most of the educational programs." Mr. Rosa also doesn't believe the figure of $800,000 in potential cuts and doesn't think the quality of education here at MHS is in jeopardy uction in the los being the This figure itions. high as 40 with the hor them being teachers. teachers believe that such dee cuts would seriously jeopardize the quality of education in Mansfield. Mr. Barbarisi explained that non-instructional areas would be hit before classroom cuts are made and went on to say that no area would be totally eliminated. Instead there would be an attempt to spread the pain.

That's not how Athletic Director, Mr. Gerry Kelley remembers the Prop 2 1/2 budget crisis of sev-

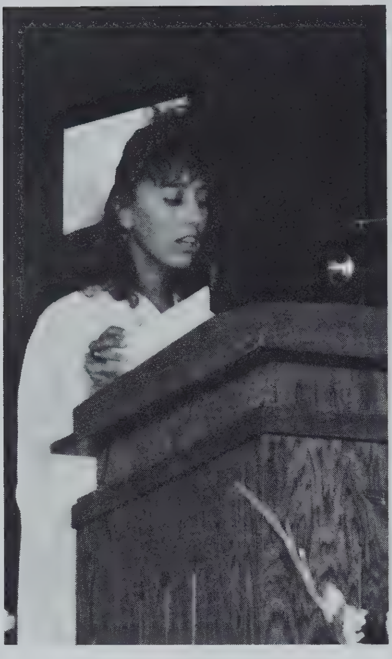
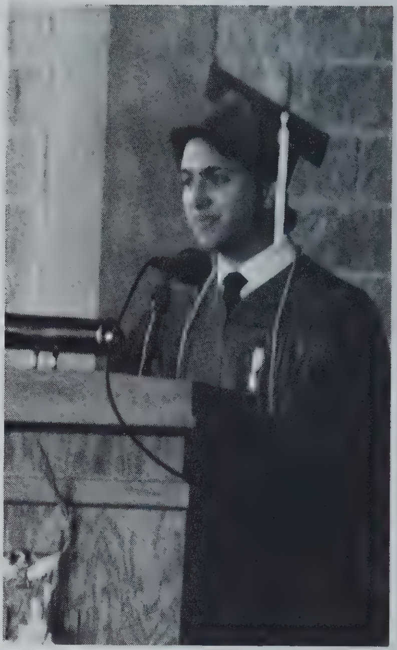
Graduation Day Speeches





Edward A. Rosa

Today, 185 young ladies and gentlemen, who comprise the Class of 1988, cmplete their high schoool experience by receiving a diploma. Upon receipt of this diploma, these graduates attain a goal actually begun in 1975. Yet, in a few days, after all the celebrating subsides, some of them may begin to regret that their high school days are over. Recalling memorable activities and events, these graduates may wish they could relive a few of them. Others, may regret that they were too busy to get involved, or that they did not always do their best. Regardless of their thoughts and feelings, however, they are obviously powerless to change anything that has already occurred. And herein lies the message that I would like to leave with the Class of 1988.

We live in a society where often times people are so intent on reaching goals, that they don't enjoy the time and experiences that occur along the way. They mistakenly think that once they've attained a certain goal, it will produce the ultimate end. This is rarely the case, however, and another destination point always awaits them. For example, although the graduates have been working towards and anticipating graduation day, most of them have already been forced to look beyond. Whether it's college, work or the armed forces, they cannot savor too long the pleasure of graduation, because another goal awaits them.

Now graduates, please do not misinterpret my remarks to mean that you should not set goals. Quite the contrary! Goal setting is important. But what I want to impress upon you, is the importance of enjoying, on a daily basis, whatever it is that you are doing to reach your goals. Also, a vital part of enjoyment comes from the satisfaction of knowing you did your best, and one thing you should never lose sight of, is that you rarely can go back and do something over again. Consequently, it is imperative that you put forth your best at whatever you do.

Today, as you participate in these commencement exercises, I remind you of Webster's definition of the word commencement. In addition to meaning "a day when degrees are conferred", it also means "a beginning". Thus today it is truly a new start for each of you .... My wish is that you will dedicate yourself to excellence, which, while requiring much hard work, also brings a high degree of satisfaction and fulfillment. Graduates , I ask you to reflect uponthese words every day, "Did I do my best today?", and if you continually can answer yes, then you cannot help but enjoy what you are doing and achieve a great degree of personal success.

I'd like to close by congratulating the parents of the graduates for the support and encouragement they've provided for the past twelve years. And to the members of Class of 1988, I give my fondest wishes for happiness and success and hope your memories of MHS will always be pleasant.

Lori Ann Tiatorio

Members of the school committee, faculty, family, and friends, it is with great pleasure that I welcome you to the graduation exercises of the Class of 1988.

I would now like to address my comments to my classmates, and all the future classes which will pass through Mansfield High School.

After I was told that I would have the honor of speaking to you today, I spent many nights thinking of what I could possibly say that would bear some relevance to your lives.

Believe me, it was not easy.

I didn't think I would have anything to say or that I knew anything that made me in anyway qualified to speak.

I really believed that I would be standing here today only because I got good grades, but that didn't seem like the subject for a speech.

I was lost and it wasn't until I had a confrontation with another student in my ethics class that I began to think of something meaningful to offer you.

We were talking that day on how to pay the enormous costs of a college education and a girl said you really couldn't get into a top school coming out of MHS.

She said that the school wasn't really any good and didn't have anything to offer.

I GOT mad.

I instinctively argued with her.

I defended the school because I knew that what she said was not true, after all I got into a good school and so did many of my classmates.

Later I wondered why I had been so quick to defend the school that I had always found so fashionable to criticize.

I even felt a little embarrassed by it.

As I thought more and more about what I had said and tried to reason why I had said it I realized why many of us might mistakenly agree with that girl and I knew that, in a small way at least, I was qualified to say something today, not because I was a successful student but because my success resulted more than a little from my active participation in the life of Mansfield High School and that this could be true for everyone.

My goal throughout high school has always been to gain admission to the best possible college.

I know this goal was not everyone's but it was mine and I can only speak for myself.

The pursuit of my goal began, believe it or not when I was a freshman.

Since then I've worked closely with my guidance counselor.

I went to his office many times to ask questions and seek his advice.

He helped me plan my program of studies and set a strategy for getting into the best colleges.

He told me that a record of success in classes and real achievement in extra curricular activities was the key.

I took his advice and worked to build a record which would help me succeed.

I registered for the most rigorous courses which were consistent with my interests and made a real commitment to a sport and a few activities.

I soon discovered the depth and range of academic offerings at MHS.

I also soon discovered that the guidance counselors were not the only people ready to help me.

My teachers, coaches, and advisors were also there when I needed them.

I spent many hours after school getting extra help in subjects which were giving me trouble.

And there were plenty of them.

They didn't come looking for me but they responded when I went looking for them.

I know the system works if you make it work.

It worked for me.

This was the road I travelled down and although my schedule was full I barely scratched the surface of what MHS has to offer.

Consider the opportunities that were there for all of us.

Consider all of the programs of study covering every aspect of interest and ability, consider all of the athletic teams and individual sports, consider the musical groups, bands, choirs, math teams and computer programs, drama and visual arts.

There was so much there and all we had to do was take it.

But now we are graduating and leaving MHS forever.

Sadly it is too late now to go back and get what we've missed.

A wise man once said that a man who doesn't understand his own past is condemned to repeat it.

We will soon be faced with new surroundings and with them new opportunities.

No matter where we choose to go from here I believe the same chances to succeed are waiting for all of us again.

I guess that's my message.

The only wisdom I feel capable of imparting today is the importance of playing an active role in one's own future.

I truly believe that if we seize the opportunities available to us, we can all realize our dreams.

Jeffrey Peter Cohen

Members of the School Committee, Mr. Barbarisi, Mr. Rosa, Mrs. Flaherty, faculty members, parents, relatives, friends, and, most importantly, members of the Class of 1988, I am pleased to welcome you to our graduation.

It gives me great honor to stand before you and share my thoughts with you on this significant occasion.

While our high school graduation signifies an end to many parts of our lives, it also signifies a beginning for many new, exciting, but also in many cases, frightening aspects of our lives.

Whatever the outcome however, it is a chance for us to grow and to improve.

While we will lose much of the security of usually having someone around to tell us what to do, how to act, where to go, we will gain more freedom to exercise our own judgment, to make more of our own decisions, to take more responsibility for our actions.

As a result we must make our decisions more carefully, for, from this day on, they will carry more weight, and people will expect more of us.

Therefore, as we plunge into the "real world" as adults, we must carefully ascertain who we are and act accordingly.

No longer can we simply identify ourselves, for example, as Mansfield High School seniors or as members of a team, the band, D-period English or Homeroom 206.

While we will continue to identify ourselves with groups such as these, we must find ourselves within our character.

In other words, I'm saying that we should view ourselves in terms of what we believe, rather than in terms of whom we resemble or with whom we associate or by what society expects from us.

But now, you may be asking, how do we go about doing this?

Each of us now has to develop his own style and beliefs to the level that he need not merely be a reflection of others' styles and beliefs--in other words, a clone.

Haven't we often justified our actions in two familiar ways: pressure from parents and teachers and "everyone else did the same thing?"

And haven't we asked our parents to buy us something just because "all the other kids have one?"

Haven't we made excuses for staying out late, not finishing homework, or making another typical shortfall just because "everyone else did?"

In school, have we not at times agreed with another student's response to a teacher's question--whether right or wrong--for fear of being forced to think up an original opinion or response, for fear of investigating what lies within our minds and possibly of exposing it to the scrutiny of others?

Even as I struggled to write this speech, I could not decide exactly what I believe in and whether I had the courage to share my beliefs with you.

Nobody can be absolutely sure of what he believes in without doing a great deal of serious thinking.

I urge you, classmates, to think, to explore your identities, to know your own mind and opinions, to exercise your right to freely think and express yourselves.

We should use the reasonings we have acquired up to this point in our education to assess open-mindedly the ideas of others before accepting or rejecting them.

We should remember that we can always learn something from others without letting the thoughts of others inhibit our own thinking.

We should remember also that the First Amendment to the United States Constitution allows us to be original.

Whether practicing originality consists of wearing socks that do not match, making up new words or expressions, or singing along with the radio despite fearing that people might not appreciate your musical ability, I encourage you to be yourself.

Find your true wants, needs, and ideas, and do not be unwillingly coerced into conformity.

Do not behave like a robot, mindlessly following a repetitive routine.

Have the courage to break with repetition and even conformity, to explore, to think or do what you intelligently should do.

Remember the final three lines of Robert Frost's poem "The Road Not Taken:" Two roads diverged in a wood, and I-- I took the one less travelled by, And that has made all the difference.

Finally, as we leave graduation today, we should evaluate whatever roads we may be able to take and choose one very carefully.

We should consider our options thoughtfully, decide who we really are and what we really represent, know what we want, and most importantly, where we want to go.

I believe that we can reach our goals only by being ourselves: our own life is at stake, and we can best control our destiny by using our uniqueness to our advantage.

As we part, I wish you the best of luck in the future and hope that you will attack the future in your own distinct, unique, individual way.

I hope that you will be yourself.

Congratulations.

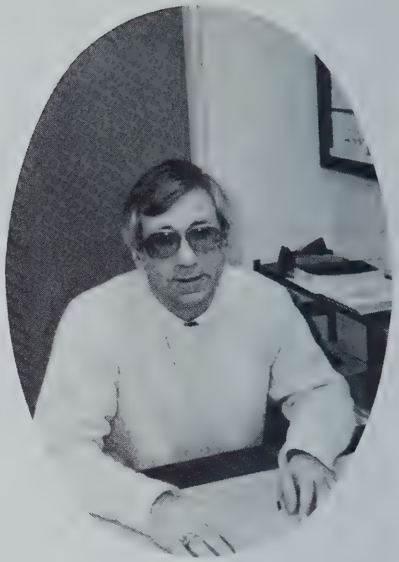
"FACULTY"

ADMINISTRATION

Dear Members of the Class of 1988:

Congatulations upon your attainment of a high school diploma. Educationally and emotionally prepared, you are now ready to embark upon another phase of your life. As you reflect upon your high school career, I hope the memories are pleasant. Best wishes for a healthy and happy future.

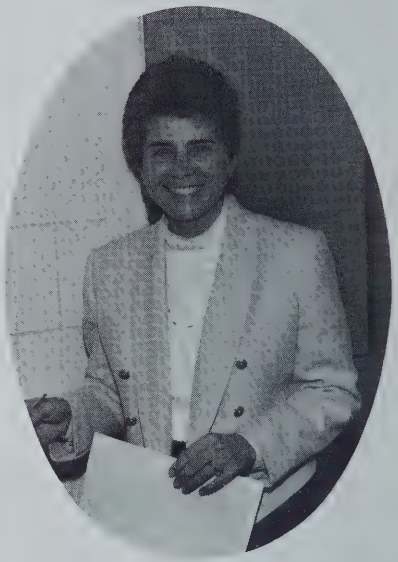
Sincerely,
Edward A. Rosa
Principal



As you leave Mansfield High School to begin a new phase of adulthood take time to reflect on your many accomplishments and on how you will utilize the knowledge, skills, and experiences acquired in high school to help you with your new endeavors.

Congratulations and best wishes to the class of 1988.

Katherine C. Flaherty
Assistant Principal



TEACHERS ARE PEOPLE TOO...

Two years ago, he was Missing but still In Action. However, this man didn't go on vacation, he didn't sleep late everyday, he wasn't sick. Instead, Harry Anderson, the chair of the English department, wrote everyday. He took a sabbatical to write six hours a day for four months. He wrote a one act play titled "The Great Awakening."

After creating this draft of his play, Mr. Anderson discovered his love for writing fiction and continued by composing a book which will contain twelve short stories set in Harmony, Rhode Island. Each of his stories "tackles another facet of one big theme." So far he has written six of the twelve stories. Four of them were written while he was working on the play and two were written during vacations. Mr. Anderson admits that he wishes he had started his dream earlier. He advises anyone who has a dream to "go for your dreams, don't postpone. Eventually you have to do it so you might as well do it now."

CENTRAL ADMINISTRATION

It is already tomorrow. Time, which never stops on its journey, will pass before your eyes, and you will be members of a class looking back at the years you spent at Mansfield High School. When you do, the photos, facts and memories in this book will be your stepping stones to a happy reminiscence. May your memories of Mansfield High School be pleasant ones, and may your futures be filled with happiness and success.

Sincerely,
Robert V. Barbarisi
Superintendent of Schools

Congratulations! You have each demonstrated significant achievement and we are exceedingly proud of you. Your futures hold many rewards and blessings. Reach boldly for them and they will be yours!

Sincerely,
Dr. Pat Shopland
Director of Curriculum

I would like to leave ach one of you with the following thought to guide you. "Make what you do each day important because you are exchanging a day of your life for it."

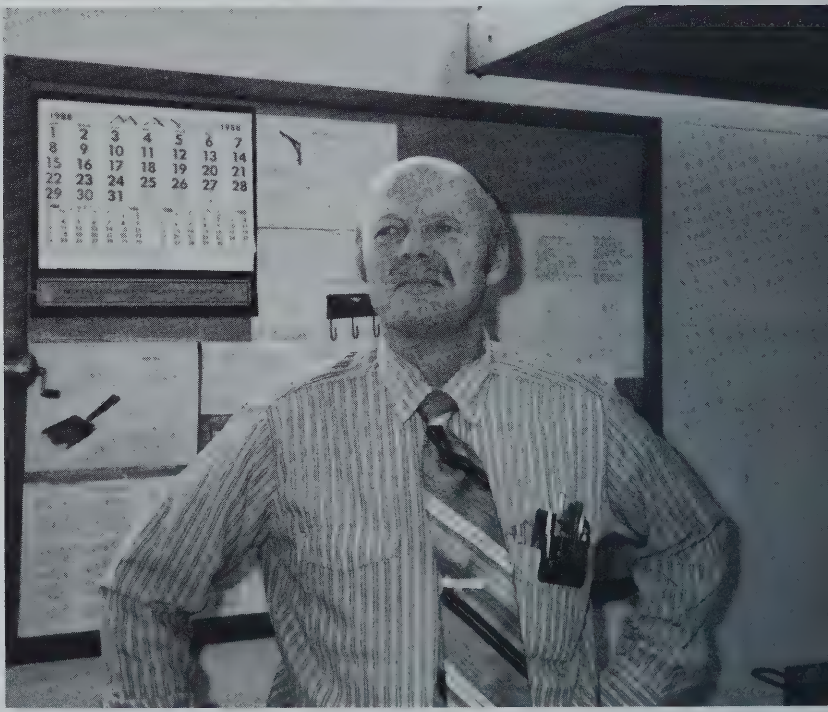
TEACHERS ARE PEOPLE TOO...

Mr. Albert Goetz does not just work with metal, he creates with it. In fact, he created his own greenhouse which he uses in his hobby, orchid raising. He started in 1972 because he thought it would be challenging. With over 500 varieties of orchids and just as many colors, this "hobby" certainly seemed so. Fortunately, raising orchids was not as difficult as it seemed, although it was unusual.



Growing orchids is unusual because orchids do not grow in soil; instead they live off the air by growing on branches or bark trees, so bark must be ground up into small chunks for the orchids to grow in. Also, orchids are as unique as people are. According to Mr. Goetz, some types of orchids are fragrant, while others are not and still others last only one day while another would last two to three months. Some of the orchids are even prizewinners. Mr. Goetz entered a Mass. show and received the prize for best green orchid. Mr. Goetz is also a member of the American Orchid Society.

It appears that things are really up and coming in Mr. Goetz's life, and we hope that this continues, as well as wishing him "growing" success with his orchids.

TEACHERS ARE PEOPLE TOO...

Racing through the rapid white waters of Otis, Massachusetts, Jackie Maciel, chemistry and physics teacher, wins first place title in women's slalom canoe racing. Mrs. Maciel has been canoe racing for years and has earned many winning titles. In the women's solo class, she placed third in both the 1985 White Water Open Canoe National Slalom Championship and the Housatonic River competition. She won first place victory in the Salem River Slalom in Connecticut. She participates in the woman's solo New England Cup Series where she races throughout New England for a year of competitions.

However, canoeing is more than just paddling: it is also a test of speed and skill. During a slalom the contestant must navigate through a series of gates suspended over the water without touching them, as well as staying within a time limit. This is made even more difficult by the constant movement of the river which must be compensated for.

Mrs. Maciel has, in her career, as in canoeing, successfully navigated life's course. We hope that her achievements, like a river, continue to flow into the future.

TEACHERS ARE PEOPLE TOO...

When he's not doing trigonometry, mathematics teacher Allan Tompson is doing ornithology. For about twenty years, Mr. Tompson has been raising homing pigeons.

Mr. Tompson has approximately 130-150 pigeons at any given time, raising about 100 per year. He compares readying pigeons for competition to training a track team. In the spring and fall, Mr. Tompson enters pigeons in races nearly every weekend.

The average pigeon lives for 10-15 years; younger pigeons can fly 100-300 air miles, while older ones can fly up to 600 miles. Their average speed is 45 mph. Birds are ready to race after six to eight months. Each race begins by releasing pigeons somewhere between Albany and Cleveland, depending on the lenghth of the race. Once they are released, the pigeons find their way back home to Massachusetts. Winners are often determined by split-second timing. The birds are identified for each race by numbered, color—coded rubber markers. There is a limit of fifteen birds per race.

Mr. Tompson is a member of a pigeon club with approximately 30 members. He says that beginners are attracted to particular pigeons for their colors, but experienced pigeon raisers such as him are interested only in birds that attain the greatest speed.

"You can't get there from here."

"You'll be sorry." "Never happen."
"Why bother?" "Be cool."
"Play it safe." "It'll never work."
"Leave well enough alone."

Conventional wisdom. Sometimes, it seems, all that is heard is a discouraging word.
But as a high school graduate, you have some unconventional opportunities coming up.
Why not shoot for the moon?
The people of The Foxboro Company hope you make it.

Yes, the book is green! No, seniors can't be in color! The book comes out in the fall because it costs ten thousand dollars more to have a spring book! No, the deadline won't be extended! Did you save the page? Yes, we'll leave by 5 pm! Yes, we're getting pizza! Did you sell any ads? Don't type that in caps! Did Ms. Williams return that phone call? Where are Mrs. Z's keys? Is the back door locked? $5000.00 for film! Is it time to go yet? Mr. Rosa beat us home again! This book costs $9000.00... if you don't like something about it rough !*#@!!
